The Search After Livingstone (A Diary Kept During The Investigation of His Reported Murder).

London, Simpkin, Marshall & Co. & Letts and Son, 1868. 1st Edition. Hardcover, 8vo., dark blue leather boards with gilt title label on spine, marbled endpages, in good condition but the duotone lithograph frontis is missing a tissue-guard, 5 internal duotone lithographs, appendix, 262pp.+ 16pp of Letts advertising, folding map at rear with a repair to one fold. Young was hired by the Royal Geographical Society to locate Livingstone as there was rumours of his death circulating in England. These rumours were started by the hired men of Zanzibar who arrived claiming their payment as Livingstone had been murdered by natives. Due to the length of time since the last correspondence received by the Society there was possible credence in the claim. Young was convinced that Livingstone was still alive, but was unable to locate him. But his book of the search over 7 months is a real explorer's journey. Very scarce first edition, in very good condition.
